Latest News

Welcome to this newsletter giving the latest update on NASH. The data entry period opened on March 14th and there have been over 850 patients entered on to the system so far. Data is entered via our website, and a short "how-to" video is also available there to help get you started.

We run regular data checks and send out missing data reports to sites on a weekly basis (the initial data being submitted by sites is typically missing around 8% of data). Once your site reaches the target of 30 patients, we check the data to ensure it is complete, then send a spreadsheet to you so that you have a copy for yourself. We would like all sites to submit data on 30 patients, but if you are able to add more we are happy to take data on up to a maximum of 50 patients per site.

NASH in Numbers

862

The number of patients whose data has so far been entered on to the system.

11

The number of sites who have entered data for their quota of 30 patients.

60

The number of sites who have entered data on to the system.

137

The total number of sites who are taking part in NASH.

Within the next few weeks more functionality will be added to our website.

You will easily able to check how many patients you have entered on to the database. The percentage of missing data from your site will also be shown.

In addition to an Excel spreadsheet, once all your data is submitted and signed off by the study team, we will also be producing PDF summaries of the responses to the audit questionnaire for both your site as a whole, and also for each patient. You will be able to download these yourself from the study website.
